

These color photographs depict a blend of fact and fiction; three dimensional forms in an abstracted environment. The immeasurable quality of space in the works challenge the nature of photography as literal documentation. These pictures recall past situations and events.

Seth Laderman

December 1, 1979