Urban Pornography

Urban Pornography examines the contemporary staging of the urban condition photographically. The recording of trivial structures and spaces ranges from canonical heartland to recovering obelisk, in sumptuous sites—domestic facades, billboards, cityscapes and court interiors, in a process of anthropomorphizing an objectified reality. In revealing the prosaic and trivializing the banal, the impact of social metropolis represented by this group of artists is to critique the perversion of repetition, sameness, predictability and excess of "reality."

Daniel Roth
Selected by Ali Subotnick

In his first New York installation, Daniel Roth’s photographs, drawings on velvet, and videos of his booth, "Germany’s Black Forest," examine the unrealistic relationships between man, nature, and architecture, both real and imaginary.
